CLINICS, CONSULTING, & COMPOSITION

Throughout a diverse career in music education and administration, Leslie Moruza Dripps has taught vocal, choral, and general music from pre-school through adult levels in almost every setting: classrooms, private studios, choral workshops, curriculum design, arts governance consulting, and adjudications. She provides music education and governance consulting to schools, school districts, churches, non-profits, and museums, with special interest in the intersection of arts and the everyday human experience.

A published composer and performer with international commercial and film credits, Leslie sings in a variety of venues, from recording studios to masterworks. She is a member of the Richmond-based elite vocal ensemble, Vox Humana, under the direction of William Bradley Roberts, and the executive and artistic director of City Singers Youth Choirs in Richmond, Virginia. She will teach you to sing unless you are very, very careful, and loves a good guiding principal. More of Leslie's creative work may be found at her website www.lesliedrippsmusic.com.

PROCESS

Governance/Strategic Planning, Curriculum/Concert design, and School/Worship Workshops begin with consultation (full, half, or hourly depending on project) and additional work completed by contractor after consultation is billed $70/hour. Projects of this sort are often completed within consultation framework while client completes hourly work in-house. Usually, consultations may be held online therefore negating travel costs.

Invoicing is submitted at the conclusion of short-term projects. For projects lasting a semester or more, the applicable fee is invoiced after the first consultation and subsequent invoicing is submitted every three months.

It is preferred to commission a composition using text in the public domain. One hour of text selection work is included in the commission fee if client desires assistance.
